Re: New Americans Democracy Project

The accompanying spreadsheets analyze the mobilization potential of Latino/Immigrant voters for Congressional and State level districts for the 2016 General Elections.

The analysis was conducted of all Illinois Congressional Districts, State Senate and State House districts for the 2016 election cycle. It is based on data from the U.S. Census Bureau, the Illinois State Board of Elections and the Voter Activation Network.

It is intended to estimate the number of mobilizable Latino/immigrant voters who could vote, but are unlikely to vote unless they are mobilized. This number is defined as the number of Immigrant individuals in each district who are old enough to vote and are U.S. Citizens, but voted in 0 or 1 of the last 3 elections. These would be likely to vote only if treated by our GOTV program.

Principal Findings

Congressional Districts

- There are an estimated 675,359 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters throughout the state.
- An estimated 412,847 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters reside in the top six congressional districts. Each of these six districts have more than 50,000 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters.
- In these six districts, Immigrant Mobilizable Voters constitute 27% or more of the total 2014 turnout.
- In the 8th, 10th, and 11th Districts, swing districts in the Chicago suburbs, Immigrant Mobilizable Voters make up between 11.6% and 15.1% of total registered voters.

State Senate Districts

- An estimated 244,376 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters in the top ten Illinois Senate districts.
- Each of these districts have more than 16,900 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters.
- In eight of these ten districts, Immigrant Mobilizable Voters constitute 43% or more of the total turnout in the most recent (2012 or 2014) election.

State House Districts

- An estimated 242,379 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters live in the 15 top Illinois House districts.
- Each of these fifteen State House Districts have more than 12,000 Immigrant Mobilizable Voters.
- In each of these districts, Immigrant Mobilizable Voters constitute 72% or more of the total 2014 turnout.

Importance of the findings

Since the previous turnout in each race (based on the 2014 general elections) assumes that Immigrant Mobilizable Voters will not vote (they are, by definition, low-propensity voters), it is important to understand what happens if they do vote.

If a considerable numbers of the Immigrant Mobilizable Voters vote in 2016, they would impact many significant races. With Immigrant Mobilizable Voters constituting 27% of the 2014 turnout in the top six congressional districts, 72% in the top 15 state house districts, a successful NADP field operation would significantly increase the electorate in these regions.

Immigrant Mobilizable Voters could shape the makeup of the next Congress and with it the prospects for immigration reform. Enacting immigration reform would inspire Latino/Immigrant voters like nothing else. Immigration reform is a realignment issue for Latinos and other recent immigrant groups.

The Pew Hispanic Center has projected a record 27.3 million Latino eligible voters throughout the US in 2016, making up a record 11.9% of the total electorate. Furthermore, according to Pew, “Between 2012 and 2016, about 3.2 million young U.S.-citizen Latinos will have advanced to adulthood and become eligible to vote, according to Pew Research Center projections. Nearly all of them are U.S. born—on an annual basis, some 803,000 U.S.-born Latinos reached adulthood in recent years.” (Krogstad, Lopez, Lopez, Passel and Patten, 2016).

If 30% to 50% of Latino/Immigrant Mobilizable Voters were mobilized as a consequence of NADP efforts, the proportion of the vote in many districts would increase by ten to thirty percentage points of the total votes cast. Clearly this increased turnout would have a decisive impact on many races.

* Because of redistricting, the Secretary of State, using a lottery, draws the length of Senate terms for the next 10 years. The Senators in the 1st and 4th columns will run for a 4-year term in 2012, then in 2016 will run for another 4-year term, then in 2020 will run for a 2-year term. Those in the 2nd and 5th columns will run for a 4-year, then 2-year, then 4-year term. Finally, those in the 3rd and 6th columns ran for a 2-year term in 2012.
